How to link your Oxford SSO to your ResearchProfessional.com account (you will only need to do this once)

Go to www.researchprofessional.com. Click ‘Log In’ on the top menu.
On the next screen, select 'University of Oxford' from the left-hand drop-down menu.
If you had a ResearchProfessional.com account prior to 15 May 2015, you should now be recognised by the system and logged in.
However, any new users who created an account after 15 May 2015, or any accounts that could not automatically be linked, will see an ‘Unrecognised User’ screen:

- If you are a new user, please select the first option and create a new account using your ox.ac.uk email address. Click “Create account”.
- If you already had a ResearchProfessional account but your SSO was not recognised, please select the third option (‘Log-in with your current ResearchProfessional.com username and password’)

You should now get a confirmation message that a Shibboleth link has been created – this means that your Oxford Single-Sign On details have been linked successfully to your ResearchProfessional.com account.
You can now log-in quickly every time using your Oxford SSO details.

If you have any problems doing this, please contact clientservices@researchresearch.com.
